

the book of

U n

the book of

Un

a fresh approach to operational improvement from the unsultants

The Powers Company

welcome to — the — power of

UN

---

Real, measurable, sustainable improvement starts by looking at your operations and systems differently than before. By leveraging the Power of UN, you can unleash your organization's true potential.

At The Powers Company, we take an unconventional approach to helping clients improve operational performance, enhance the skill sets and effectiveness of managers and front-line leaders, as well as integrate performance data with IT systems. All in a way that is unlike any consultants you've ever worked with.

meet the unsultants

Throw out your preconceived notion of consultants. Probably something along the lines of “aloof MBAs with limited field experience, cookie-cutter solutions and vague success metrics.” Sound about right?

Well, The Powers Company is cut from a different cloth. We're a results-based management consulting group founded by C-level executives with strong operational experience. Our focus is on substantially improving clients' profitability, productivity, customer service, and quality—in a positive, collaborative way. Which is why we think of ourselves as unsultants.

unvestment

Your company makes lots of huge investments in capital and software systems; many with no ROI. However, getting approval for real management development and operational improvement services can be tough. But The Powers Company makes things easy on you by showing how it's actually a cost-neutral, win-win decision. Using your clearly defined performance and cost objectives, we outline a strategic plan for guaranteed results that more than pay for themselves in a relatively short time. All without needing any additional capital investment. Sounds like an undeniably appealing ROI, don't you think?

untimidation

We're the first to admit that a bunch of consultants who show up thinking they have all the answers can be intimidating to your staff. That's why our unsultants take a different tact. We come in and do a lot of listening—to everyone from supervisors to upper management. Then we ask a lot of questions. All the while getting to know your people, processes, and priorities. So when our collaborative experts introduce operational changes, your team doesn't fear them. They confidently embrace them.

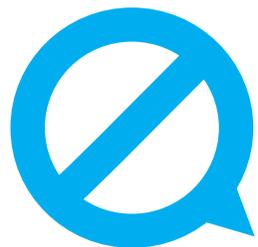

Most organizations struggle when departments operate in divided silos. Imagine the productivity boost your company would achieve if you eliminated operational silos, allowing people, systems, processes, and data to work together in perfect harmony. The Powers Company's integrated management system (IMS), symfini, can get all your departments playing from the same page—moving productivity to peak capacity and maximizing operating performance. Best of all, our IMS fully integrates with your existing IT systems rather than requiring tons of additional capital investment.

un individuals

When The Powers Company partners with your company, we don't come in as individuals, we come in as part of your team. That means rolling up our sleeves, getting down on the front-line, and getting down to the business of facilitating positive change. They see that we can connect with their challenges and struggles because we have been front-line supervisors ourselves. But they also see that we have a process that will significantly help them achieve their objectives and improve performance. This unleashes behavioral shifts that lead to real, sustainable improvement.

unjargoning

The world is filled with MBA-wielding, self-proclaimed experts who talk a good game. They spew buzz words, business speak and five-syllable terms like pros. But more jargon isn't what your company needs now. It's not what your team wants to hear. They need the kind of straight-forward, honest talk that the unsultants are known for. They want jargon-free advice and proven solutions that lead to measurable operational improvement. In other words, no BS. Just the unvarnished truth.

Right now, those aggressive goals you have for operational improvement within your organization may seem unrealistic or downright impossible to many employees. But the fact is, they're all very attainable. It just takes a sustainable shift in processes, departmental collaboration, and behavioral attitudes. The kind of changes that are made possible by partnering with the unsultants. Our team excels at spotting possibilities where others see obstacles. And before you know it, "impossible" has been erased from your organization's vocabulary.

unleash

Now that you've gotten a glimpse at the Power of UN, wouldn't you like to see more? Aren't you curious to hear how we can unleash your organization's true potential? Isn't your interest piqued by the opportunities for operational, behavioral, cultural, and financial change we can uncover? Then contact the unsultants. And find out how we can deliver guaranteed results that more than pay for themselves in a short period of time.

www.thepowerscompany.com
info@thepowerscompany.com
770-983-1304

The Powers Company

www.thepowerscompany.com
info@thepowerscompany.com
770-983-1304